Millie is a current freshman in college at IUP as a Musical Theatre major. Millie has been dancing since she was 3 years old, starting in ballet and tap, and quickly adding jazz, lyrical, hip-hop, contemporary, and modern to her training when she started competing at age 8. She was on dance team for 9 years, and left the team after her freshman year of high school to continue pursuing her passion for musical theatre. During her time continuing theatre in high school, Millie also found her love for the dance style of Bob Fosse.

Millie won multiple Isaac awards for her work in choreography on her senior year Thespians production of Newsies at State High, which was where she truly discovered her love for teaching and sharing the art of dance with others. Millie's favorite style is tap, so teaching King of New York was certainly her favorite part of the rehearsal process! Millie has also been a dancer in the Rockettes Summer Intensive for the last 3 years, which has been an incredible way for her to continue growing in her technique.

Millie loves to see how other dancers connect to their art. Her passion for musical theatre and dance helps her to connect with students through technique and character study, as well as finding a connection between the art of performance to their own lives.
